When a person chooses not to be in any extra-curricular activity, he is missing out on a world of experiences. His life could be compared to a flat black and white photograph which does nothing but present the facts. He is uninvolved, not a part of a group, giving nothing, therefore receiving nothing in return.

However, an involved student sees things in a different light. It's his spirit which carries teams to victories, clubs to successes, and friends to good times happily shared. He isn't there just for the good times. He sees it all, and is part of it all. So he is there for the defaults, disasters and hard times. All of these things are a part of the full picture seen by the involved student.

Such a student is not alone. He is a functioning part of the system which keeps activities at the school running. He is there for dances, football games, softball games and after school clubs — always being involved either by participating or cheering for his favorite team. This student is the backbone of John F. Kennedy.

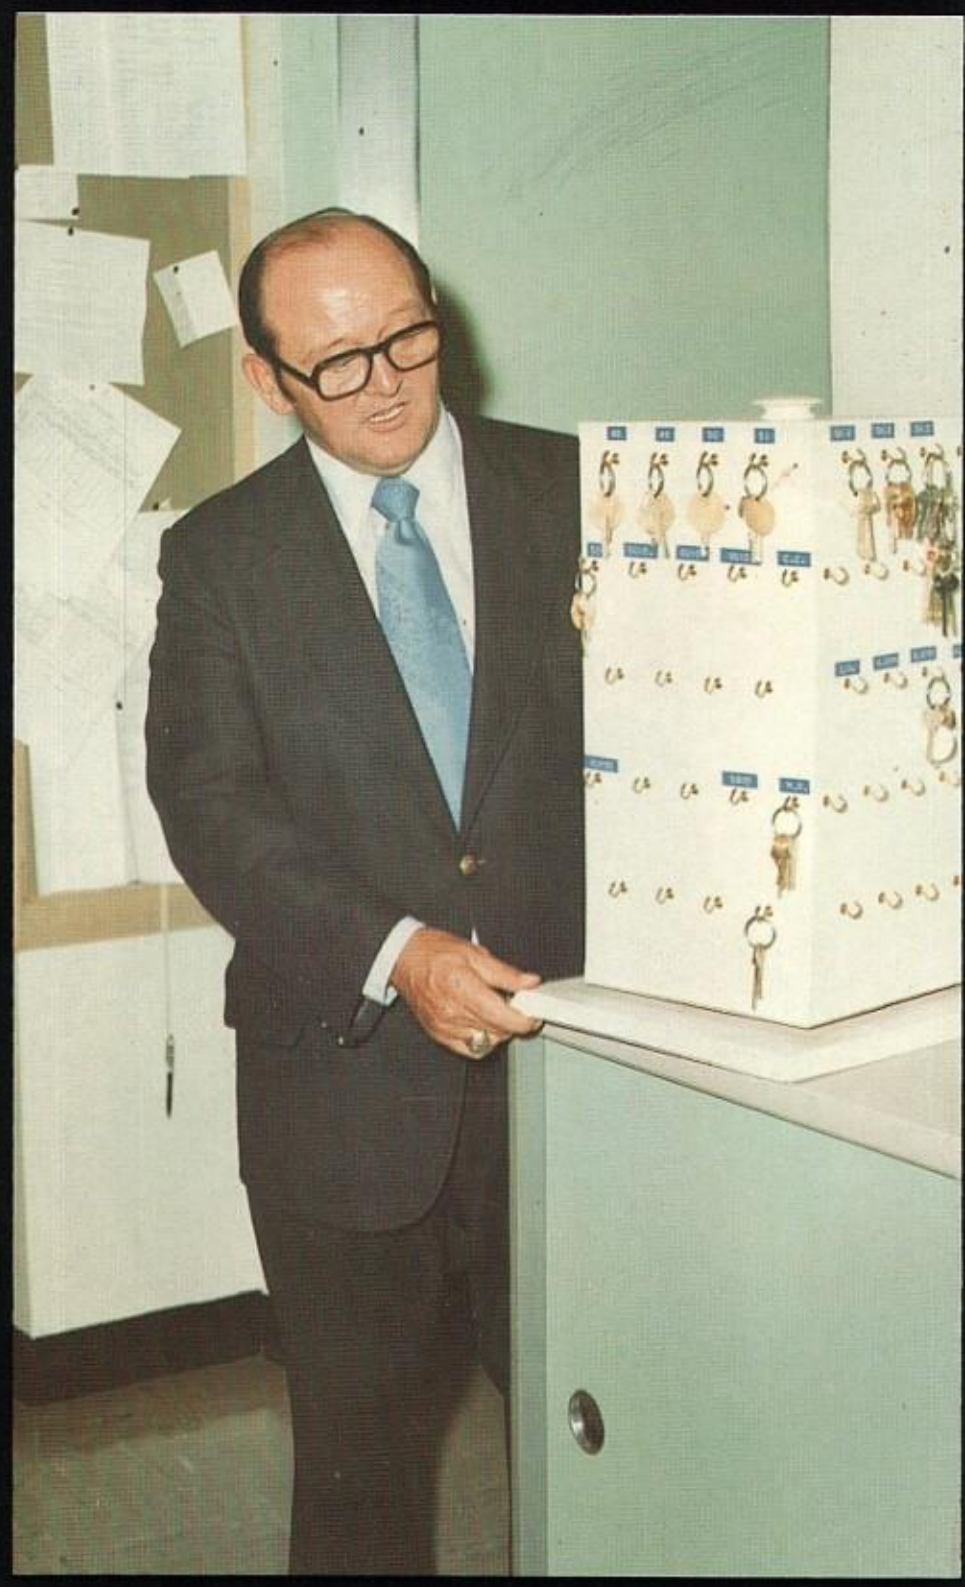
Dedication



The Class of 1977 would like to show its appreciation to someone who's not only a faculty member, but a friend. He is a dedicated man whose day doesn't end at 2:15. You can always find him at P.T.A. meetings, at all athletic events cheering for our side, and even at our dances. He's someone you can turn to when you need help, someone you just know cares. So without any further ado, we would like to dedicate our yearbook to you, Mr. Z.

There is one lesson that I hope each of you have learned and experienced. That is, that there is a price tag on human liberty. That price is the willingness to assume responsibilities of being a free people in a democratic society. The payment of this price is a personal matter with each of us and is not something others can pay for us. It means an involvement on our part in all activities of our society, an expenditure of our energy, time and often other sacrifices. To let others carry the responsibilities, burdens, work and worry - while we share only the benefits - may be a very human impulse, but it is likely to produce undesired consequences. Like physical activity is necessary to the human body to keep it healthy, involvement in a democratic society assures its continuity and the preservation of our freedoms.

During the difficult times at the birth of our Nation, John Quincy Adams summarized it very well when he said, "Posterity! You will never know how much it cost the present generation to preserve your freedom. I hope you will make good use of it."

Are you willing to pay the price? Are you making proper use of your freedom?

Mr. Henry Andrzejewski, Principal

Color is one of the most exciting aspects of life. It is the spice that turns a dull day into a pleasant experience. Color or the lack of it influences our outlook and reaction to daily experience. To appreciate the values of color we must approach life with an open mind - eager to take in as much of the experience as possible.

Here at John F. Kennedy, the student that is a real part of school life - the active participant - is treated to a life of color. He is caught up in a rainbow of activity - academic, athletic, and social. He learns to appreciate his fellow students and to help them when and where his help is needed. He is a part of the life of the school and learns to appreciate the excitement and dynamism of his high school life.

Those of you who find school life dark and dismal and boring are part of the inactive group. You have cheated yourself of the exciting experience of participating in the kaleidescope of school activity. You may have acquired the education you sought, but you have neglected the other sides of your personality. You have failed to appreciate the exhilaration of belonging and being involved in the total life of school experience. You have confined yourself to the gloom and left the color and excitement of life to others.

Mr. Henry Zwierzchowski
Assistant Principal

Each individual is entitled to his own opinion and has different interests. Here at John F. Kennedy, we try to fulfill these needs with a variety of social and athletic activities, in addition to our curriculum.

Involvement in school and its activities has a lasting effect. Knowledge once gained can never be taken from an individual, it makes a lasting impression. This impression is what helps an individual to grow, it helps him see a more vivid picture of his surroundings, one may say a picture in color.

A student who does not get involved and does not carry one of his interests through is shutting knowledge out. He tends to take a darker outlook on life, you may say he sees things in black and white.

We should all take advantage of the opportunities given to us. We may add to our friendships, win meets and trophies, and find that one day time has taken all these things away from us. If we think about it though, time can never really take these things away because they will always be near in our memories. Opening ourselves to different interests leaves us something very special in return, the joys of a lifetime full of color and its full appreciation.

Guidance

Bernard Kurowski and Eugene Norton

Emil Romanowich - Department Head

"What can I amount to", "How can I accomplish this goal?" These are just a couple questions guidance counselors have to deal with. Their main objective among many others is to help guide their students into being useful and creative adults and help them adapt to the outside world by preparing them with ideas and goals to accomplish while attending school.

Language Arts

Suzanne Hartke - Department Head

John Glovack, Michelle Edson, Lawrence Hajduk

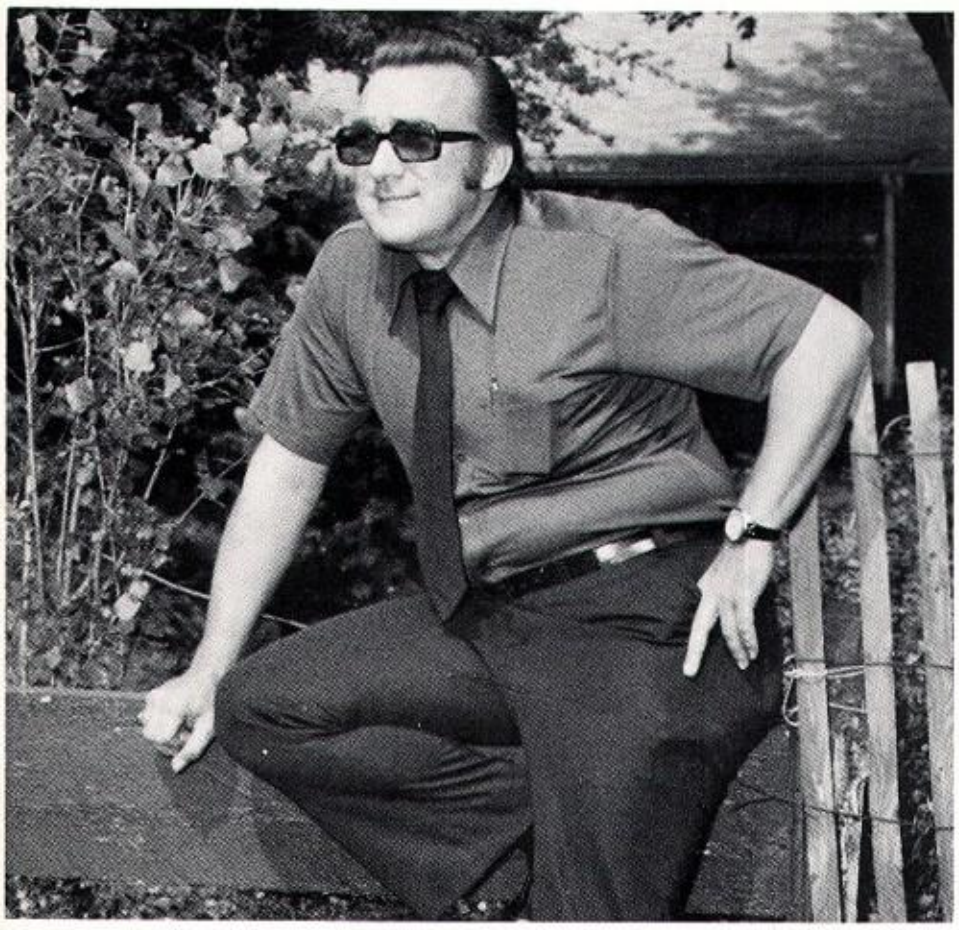
Stanley Odachowski, Lawrence Schull, Eugenia Jenczka, Glenn Greenway

Melanie Bojak and Sheryl Olson

The age old purpose of the high school is to provide the student with knowledge in all areas. Consequently, the English student is provided with an opportunity to acquire knowledge in all areas of literature - Ancient to Modern, American to Oriental - and to develop the accompanying skills of reading and communication.

Social Studies

Joseph Czyrny, Michael Injaychock, David Peters



Daniel Gasiewicz

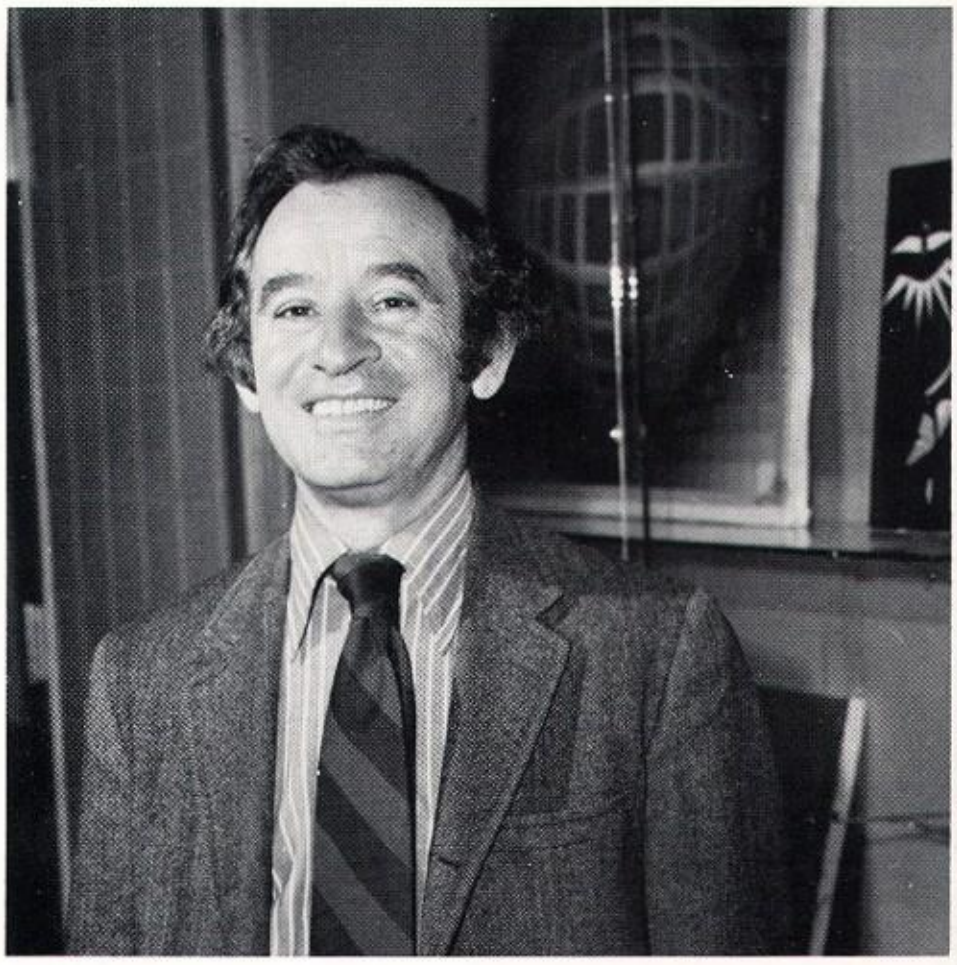
Andrew Baczek, Fred Zelasko

Norman Pyzikiewicz, Diana Maly, Albert Zizzi

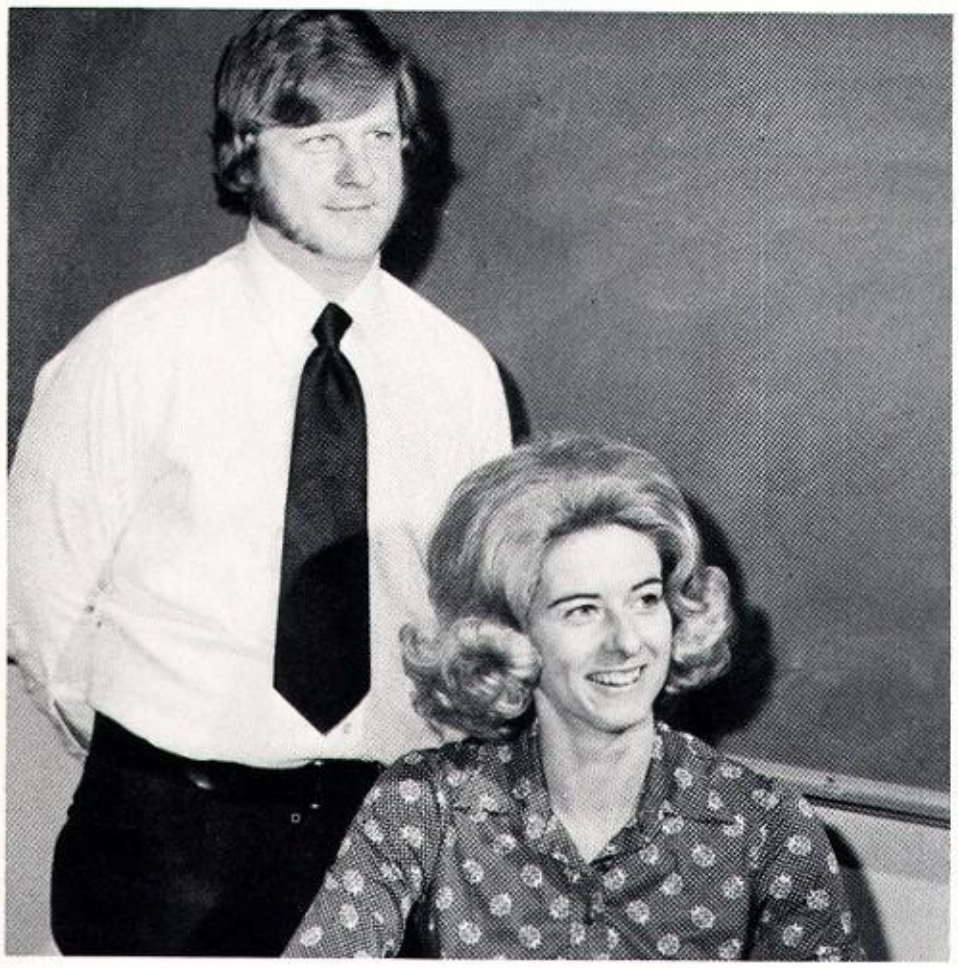
Walter Ward - Department Head

Webster's Dictionary defines Social Studies as; the science that deals with human society or its elements such as family, state, or race and with man's relationship and institutions as a member of an organized community. We learn about various communities in courses such as European Cultures, Afro-Asian Cultures and our own American History. The study of people in groups is dealt with in Sociology. We are educated as consumers through Consumer Ed. How a country can use its resources in all phases is taught through Economics.

Mathematics



Thomas LaPenna - Department Head



Carolyn Maslona, Edward Fialkiewicz

Richard Andrzejewski, Kathleen Herman

Mathematics is not just adding, subtracting, multiplying and dividing. It shows us deductive reasoning as well as how to think out a problem in a logical way. Mathematics is an infinite subject. This is clearly demonstrated by the fact that numbers are countless and therefore mathematics is also unending.

Science

Anita Molenda, Patricia Schupbach, Rita Domhart

Robert Bratton - Department Head

Susan Sullivan, Ralph Simme

The science department offers courses in Biology, Chemistry and Physics, along with advanced courses in Biology and Chemistry. These courses are designed to help students get into college or help prepare them for some of the many technical jobs available to them.

Business

Suzanne Herron, Sandra Willhoff, Barbra Kramer

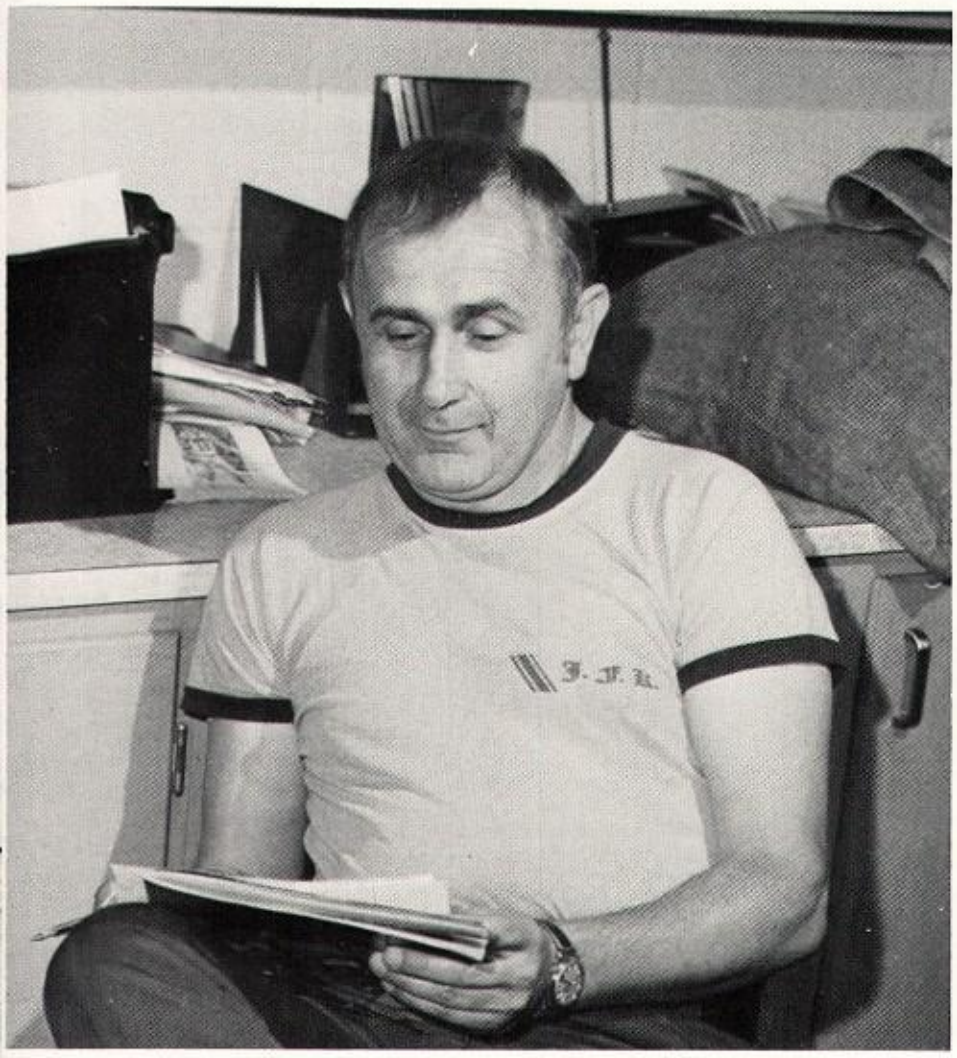
Edward Schmitz - Department Head

Monie Myles, Carol Albright, Ronald Radlich

Richard Witakowski

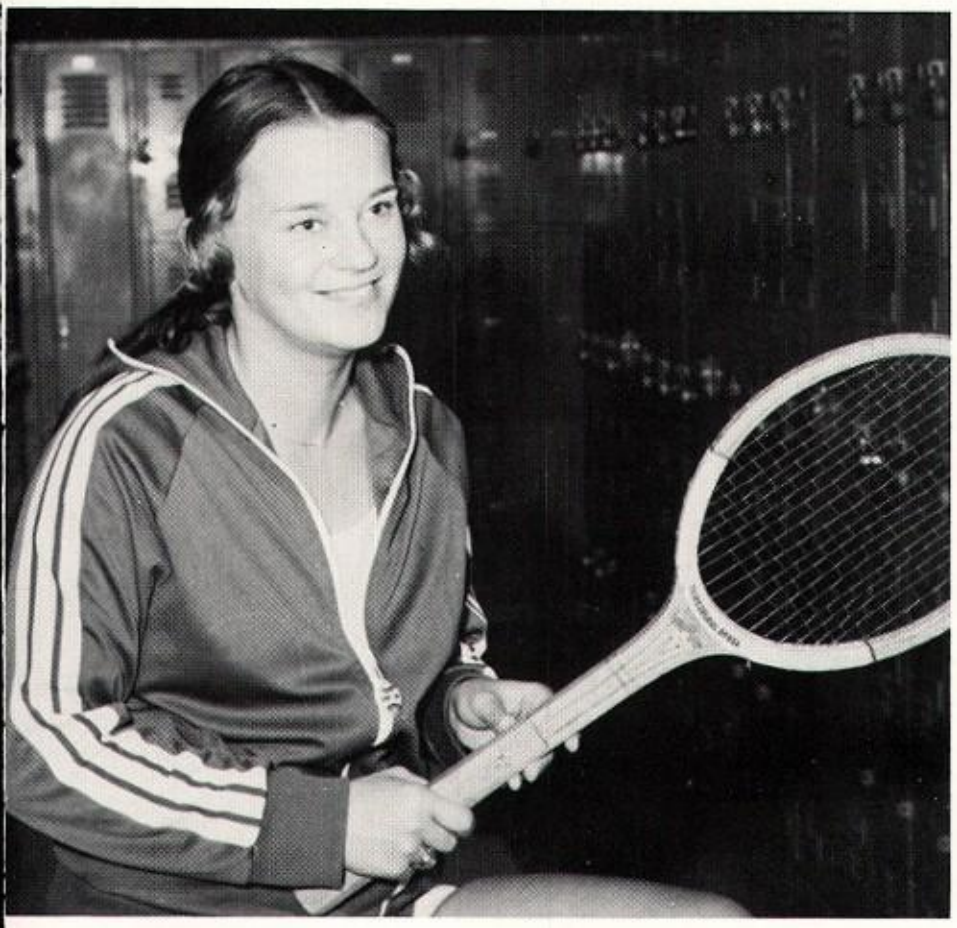
The Business Department provides the necessary skill for our students to obtain a good job upon graduation from high school. If more education is desired, both academic and skill subjects prepare them for successful advanced learning.

Physical Education and Health



Leonard Kosobucki - Department Head

Candace Jachimiak, Dennis Piekarski



Pamela Kilmer

The main objective of school is to develop the mind. Physical education, though, helps build a sound body. Students are also taught how to compete fairly through various sporting activities. This enables our students to cope with life's competitiveness.

The promoting of the well rounded human being is the main focus of Health Courses. The Physical Education curriculum deals with the physical aspect. Health deals with the academic aspect. The Health curriculum could be compared to the maintenance manual of your car. It shows how to practice preventive maintenance to avoid major problems.

Industrial Arts

Charles Miecznikowski - Department Head

Joseph Nikiel, Stanley Radomski, James Wagner

The changing technology of today is reflected in the curriculum of our Industrial Arts Department. Students are prepared for careers in the areas of Wood, Metal, and Electronics. These courses enables students to delve into the fascinating world of industry.

Fine Arts

John Borsuk, Joseph Tanski

MaryAnn Nillson

The fine arts offer to the students at J.F.K. the opportunity to develop their talents in drawing and painting and commercial design, with electives in photography and crafts. The courses in art have enriched many of our students experiences in expression.

Foreign Language

Michelle Edson, Richard Meloon

Andrew Baczek, Sheryl Olson

The windows of the world are opened through Foreign Language. Languages broaden a person's aspects of a particular language. They also assist in further comprehending and appreciating the culture. This way students learn not only a language but a culture as well.

Miss Hartle,
The first thing that I must say is that you are one of the English teachers in this school who have kept my attention for any period of time, which is quite an accomplishment when your think about it. I really thought that the whole class appreciated your way of teaching as I did. I really can't write everything that I want to say 'cause there's too much, too many good times, and too many happy memories, much respect for a fantastic lady. Always remember me as your average run-of-the mill Regents scholarship-winning, guitar playing, 73 average-having student.
